Occasional and Meeting Tables Reach New Heights with Skyline

March 17, 2016, Cerritos, CA—The new Skyline series of occasional and meeting tables from Encore cuts across the corresponding realms of form and function and introduces a contemporary perspective on classic design elements.

An exceptionally versatile collection, Skyline is characterized by subtle detailing and a thin, light-scale profile. The slender table-top, with its elegantly-tapered edge, is the ideal counterpart to its sturdy pedestal base, providing a seamless counterbalance to its understated appearance.

Available in both square and round shapes, the series features a wide array of surface options and finishes to complement virtually any décor. Table tops can be specified in a broad variety of laminate selections, Avonite solid surface or back-painted glass, while base options include Graphite, Metallic Silver, Chrome, Satin Black—or for the more adventurous—colorful premium finish options.

Tables also feature a range of user-friendly top sizes to ensure there's something for everyone – from intimate 2-person settings to larger group environments where openness and collaboration are desired. As such, the dynamic new collection is an excellent solution for cafés and lunchrooms, lobbies, employee lounges, libraries and study spaces, or even impromptu touchdown areas.

Further adding to the collection's appeal is its ability to easily mix-and-mingle with numerous seating styles—whether it's getting down to business or settling-in for a casual conversation. Occasional, meeting and bar-height tables are perfect companions to lounge furniture, guest chairs, stools, or by themselves when simply standing is preferred.

“Skyline represents Encore's first venture into the meeting tables market, which was a natural progression from our occasional table offering,” says David Logsdon, Encore's Director of Sales. “We feel this new collection seamlessly complements our existing seating lines and embodies both the quality and energy of the Encore brand.”
